

How Do You Explain To 15 Million Jobless Americans Trying To Put Food On The Table That Their Government Is Still Adding 125,000 Foreign Workers A Month?

While millions of jobless Americans are losing their homes and trying to feed their families, their government continues to give away U.S. jobs to foreign workers. Reckless immigration policy has been providing new permanent and temporary work authorizations to about 125,000 foreign workers each month. With the worst economy and highest unemployment in decades, why is our government putting the interests of foreign workers ahead of unemployed Americans? Here's a simple plan that will open up millions of jobs for Americans at little cost to taxpayers. It's time to STOP the great American job give-away.

A Taxpayer- Friendly Plan That Opens Up Jobs For More Americans

- 1. Worksite Enforcement. An estimated 8 million illegal workers hold jobs today. Stepped up enforcement of existing worksite laws and programs such as E-Verify will open up jobs for American workers immediately.
- 2. Time Out For Temporary Worker Visas. More than 900,000 visas were issued last year alone to foreign temporary workers. And we're still doing it today. Stop giving visas to non-agricultural workers and open those jobs to American workers.
- 3. Time Out On Most Permanent Foreign Workers. Of the 1.1 million immigrants admitted to the U.S. last year, 3 of 4 were potential job seekers while Americans were losing jobs. Reduce the flow of immigration and jobs will open for Americans.
